Why Study Japan Now?

Some may ask 'why Japan', whose economic development in the 90's was labeled as "a lost decade." This new World Bank report suggests that the Japanese experience offers useful insights into our understanding of a knowledge-based economy.

Speakers:

Tsutomu Shibata

Senior Adviser, World Bank Institute

Commentator:

James E. Auer

Director, Center for US-Japan Studies and Cooperation, Vanderbilt

Mototsugu Shintatni

Assistant Professor, Dept. of Economics, Vanderbilt

Moderator:

Yukio Tada

Chairman, Center for Professional Exchange
